

The sports arena of Honolulu's War Memorial Auditorium complex is taking shape rapidly under its canopy of steel girders, which will eventually be covered. In this aerial photograph Kapiolani Boulevard is in the foreground with Ward Avenue at left of the old Ward Estate. Groundbreaking ceremonies were held on May 25, 1962, and the whole complex is scheduled for completion early in 1964. Behind the arena are convention facilities (the building with flat roofs) and a theatre-concert hall is under construction in the background. The arena will seat 9,000 people.—Photo Hawaii Photo.
